Marywood University Supports UNC's Youth Programs

Cut Line:

Marywood University Graduate School of Social Work Student Government Association raised funds to support United Neighborhood Centers of Northeastern Pennsylvania's Youth Programs. Specifically, the funds will help kick off a new program called, "Kids With Cameras", which is modeled after an English documentary. In this program the children, ages 13-15, will be given one disposable camera where they will photograph their community through their eyes. After the program concludes, UNC will host an art show featuring the photographs that will be open to the public in the fall. Pictured are (l-r) UNC Deputy Director for Programs and Services Lea Dougherty, Marywood University students Stacey Crusie, Debbie Guy, UNC Director of Community Youth Programs Sharon Brittingham, and student Christin Wetzel.
